

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method of cleaning damaged layers and polymer residue on semiconductor devices includes mixing HF and ozone water in a vessel to form a solution of HF and ozone water, and dipping a semiconductor device in the vessel containing the solution of HF and ozone water. Preferably, ozone water is subsequently introduced into the vessel to replace the solution of HF and ozone water in the vessel.